After all Gen. Hancock was right in 1880 when he was ridiculed for saying the tariff was a local question. The Louisiana Democrats are demanding a tariff on sugar, the Western Democrats on wool and so on down the line, every section wanting its favorite commodity protected and all others made free in the proposed revision.

The wholesale sowing of plant beds in Henderson county by night riders continues and about 100 beds have been destroyed by sowing them with grass seed. A reward of $1000 has been offered for the apprehension of the guilty parties by J. S. Taylor of the Henderson County Tobacco Association.

HOLE CUT

Into The New Bitulithic Street
By Sewerage Company.

The first opening was made in the new bitulithic street yesterday in the street by the Hopkinsville Sewerage Co. A strip about 18 inches wide was cut out from the curb line to a point near the center of the street in order to make a connection that was not made last fall. The opening is made at the expense of the Sewer Company and under the five years guaranty the Southern Bitulithic Co., will have the opening repaired and put back as it was before. The opening of the street was a very difficult matter, as the four-inch topping was as hard as a rock and its enduring character was fully demonstrated. Many protests by citizens were heard against cutting into the street, but the Sewerage Company has a right under its franchise to make the connection but it will be an expensive proposition for it. It is likely that the Council will pass an ordinance requiring a cash deposit to be made for any future openings in the permanent streets.

Municipal Ownership.

I am in favor and do not suppose there is a candidate for Councilman in the city of Hopkinsville who does not favor submitting to the people the question of municipal ownership of the light and sewerage systems.

CREST OF
THE FLOODIs Reached at Cincinnati And Louisville...Other Cities In Danger.

FALL WILL BE VERY SLOW.

Lower Ohio Valley And Mississippi Valley Now The Danger Zone.

Louisville, Ky., April 2.—As the water recedes from the upper Ohio and the cities of that section are relieved, the Southern and Western river communities are facing a desperate situation. The levee at Shawneetown, Ill., was cut below the town Tuesday afternoon to save greater damage if it broke. The drainage district levee at Caro, broke during the afternoon and all of the workmen were engaged on the main levee of the town to prevent its going out. At Hickman the water stood eighteen inches above the top of the levee, held in only by a thin board and sand wall.

The following special bulletin was issued from the Weather Bureau at 9 o'clock last night:

"The river is falling as far down as Maysville at the rate of one-half of one-tenth of a foot an hour. It has been stationary at Cincinnati all day—reaching a stage crest of 69.8 feet. It was reported stationary also at Madison. The crest will be reached at Louisville by morning, will remain nearly stationary for about twenty-four hours and then begin to fall slowly. The decline will be very slow during the next three or four days.

"F. J. WALZ,
"Professor of Meteorology."

Dayton is planning to ask the Federal Government to loan that city $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 for reconstruction purposes. The damage done by the flood was yesterday estimated at $150,000,000.

Secretary of War Garrison yesterday, on his way to Washington, notified the Governors of ten flood States of the Government's readiness to aid them if emergencies arise.

LECTURE TONIGHT

Yellowstone Park to Be Seen In Moving Pictures and Graphically Described.

William B. Leffingwell, one of the foremost lecturers of the country, as well as a noted traveler, will lecture at The Avalon tonight. He comes under the auspices of the H. B. M. A., the lecture is free, everybody is invited and there ought to be a crowded house. There is a treat in store for those who have never seen the most beautiful natural park in the world and would like to learn something about it. From what the papers say where Mr. Leffingwell has lectured, the moving pictures might be cut out and still the lecture would be well worth everybody going out to hear. Lecture begins at 8 o'clock.

NEW LAWYER

T. F. Callard Admitted to Local Bar Tuesday.

T. F. Callard was added to the list of the Hopkinsville Attorneys yesterday morning, making a total of 44 lawyers.

Mr. Callard was examined Monday at Elkton by Judge Sandidge and Attorneys Benjamin Petrie and S. Walton Forgy. He answered all questions highly satisfactorily to the examiners and presented himself before Judge Hanbery and was admitted to the practice of law in Christian county.

THE DEAD FINANCIER

Something of J. Pierpont Morgan, The New York Money King.

John Pierpont Morgan started his business career half a century ago on the board of directors of a large maritime insurance company. He secured the position through the influence of his wealthy father. For a year young Morgan attended the directors' meetings, but never opened his mouth except to vote.

The president of the company told the elder Morgan that nothing could be done with his son, who seemed to take little interest in business. John Pierpont, however, all the time was laying his plans for his first railroad consolidation, which when accomplished, established his standing in Wall street as the only man who ever got the better of Jay Gould.

The president of the insurance company had mistaken taciturnity for indolence. The sobriquet of "Sphinx of Wall Street" later was applied to the man who at first was believed to have been without business acumen, but in time became the supreme head of the finances of the American continent.

Morgan's control over men and money was the dominate keynote of his life.

Others, perhaps, were wealthier than Morgan, but he commanded his wealth and that of others.

At the height of his power he is said to have controlled $9,000,000,000.

In addition to finance, art, literature, philanthropy and sport came under his influence. His prestige was not confined to his own country—kings and emperors and even the Pope were wont to call him into consultation.

Mr. Morgan came from an old Puritan New England family which dates back in this country to 1636. He was born in wealth. His father, Junius Spencer Morgan, left him $10,000,000, and also young Morgan inherited important banking connections. J. S. Morgan had accumulated his fortune in the dry goods business with Levi P. Morton and later as an associate of George Peabody, merchant, banker and philanthropist.

J. Pierpont Morgan was born April 17, 1833, in a modest, red brick cottage in Hartford, Conn. As a youngster his tendency to write poetry gave him the nickname of "Pip." When he was 14 Morgan was sent to Boston to the English High School. He showed a particular bent for mathematics, but had no gifts indicative of unusual mental power.

Despite a life of strenuous endeavor Mr. Morgan found time for other things. He gave away millions in charity, but nothing perturbed him more than to have it mentioned to him. He was a devout Christian and vestryman of St. George's Episcopal church, where he could be seen every Sunday morning when at home passing the silver salver for the collection.

It is impossible to estimate with any degree of accuracy the size of the Morgan fortune. It has been variously estimated in recent years at from $75,000,000 to $200,000,000. If it is anywhere near the latter figure, it is equally true that Mr. Morgan made as much for others.

In 1861 Mr. Morgan married Miss Amelia Sturges, who died the following year. In 1865 he married Frances Louise Tracey, by whom he had one son and three daughters. The son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., is now a man of middle age, and a number of years has been the active head of the Morgan banking house in New York.

THE ATHENAEUM

Will Elect Its Annual Officers
This Evening.

The Athenaeum will hold its April meeting tonight at Hotel Latham. On the program are Col. Jouett Henry and John Stites. They have not announced the subjects of their papers. The meeting is an important one as it is the time for the election of officers and the announcement of the program for the May Banquet.

NEW ARMORY
FOR SOLDIERSHandsome New Quarters Turned Over to Co. D. Monday Night.

MUSIC, SPEECHES, DRILL, BALL

County and City Think Nothing is too Good For the Soldiers.

Last Monday night was a gala time for the officers and members of Co. D, Kentucky State Guard. The new armory was formally taken possession of by the soldiery, without the firing of a gun or a bayonet charge, or a charge of any kind. Everything was free and everybody who could get into the building was there, large numbers having to return home for want of room.

The Third Regiment Band was there and opened up the program with a thrilling selection rendered in the usual perfect manner of the best military band of the South. Col. Henry made a happy address of welcome and Mayor Meacham followed with a tribute to the company's past and present. Hon. John C. Duffy followed him in a speech in which he recalled the many good things that have come to the people in the past few years—two parks from the late John C. Latham, a Carnegie library, and a memorial hospital from Dr. Stuart. The next thing he is looking for is a big Y. M. C. A. building. But while we are receiving so much in the way of gifts the people are stirred up to the point of doing more for themselves.

After a violin solo by Prof. Fiedler, of Evansville, the competitive drill took place. The judges were: Col. Henry, Col. Bassett, Majors Tandy and Nelson, Adjutant Winfree and Lieutenants Smith and Cliborn. The contestants were put through the manual by Capt. E. W. Clark, who has given many years to the work of having the best drilled company in Kentucky, and with the assistance of his lieutenants, Smith and Cliborn, he has about succeeded. The drill was entered into with earnestness by the soldier boys, but one by one they dropped out until it narrowed down to Frank Logan and Harry Tappan. These two young men stood the work well, each alert all the time to catch the words of command until Tappan made a break and Logan won the medal.

Prof. Fiedler then gave a solo, the band played and the crowd dispersed excepting those who remained for the dance.

The new armory is all that the soldier boys could ask and they appreciate what the county and city have done for them.

NEW TAR PRODUCT

Is On Trial On a Section of Virginia Street.

A preparation of coal tar, a refuse product from the gas plant of the Kentucky Public Service Co., has been tried as an experiment on Virginia street from Fourteenth to Sixteenth streets. The street has been swept and oiled and the tar will be compared in its results with the oil heretofore used. The citizens are beginning to clamor for oil on the streets, as the dust is unbearable. The council is letting the dust problem help the people make up their minds whether they want oil or water this season. The streets will be oiled only at the expense of property owners who order the oil in advance. Sprinkling will be done by private contracts or with lawn hose as property owners prefer.

POSTAL CLERK ARRESTED

I. G. Mason, of Adairville, Is Charged With Tampering
With Mail.

Russellville, Ky., March 31.—I. G. Mason, who is chief clerk in the post-office at Adairville, this county, and who is the husband of Mrs. Mason, postmistress at that point, was arrested Saturday by Deputy United States Marshall Wise charged with tampering with the mail. Mason has been prominent in local Republican politics for some years and at one time was Democratic Sheriff of Logan county.

He was brought to Russellville and taken before United States Commissioner George S. Hardy. He waived examination and was put under $500 bond to answer before Federal Court at Owensboro in May. Mason was licensed to practice law about two years ago. Post-office Inspectors Milliken and Culman have been working on the case since the first of March and through means of a large number of decoy letters the alleged evidence was secured. Mrs. Mason continues as postmistress, but Mr. Mason has been suspended as clerk.

NO AEROPLANE FOR WRIGHT

Inventor of Flying Machine Had to Save Himself on Foot Like Common Mortals.

South Dayton, Ohio, March 31.—Orville Wright, who, like thousands of other Daytonians, was engaged in shoveling mud from the Wright homestead today, had no chance to use an aeroplane when the flood came.

When warning of the flood came, his father, Bishop Wright and his sister, Katherine, left the place in a wagon. In some way they became separated and for two days the inventor could not find his father. When located it was found that he had experienced a mishap. Orville Wright fled soon after the other two and found refuge on high ground. His shop and its contents were not damaged.

NEW HOME

Of R. E. Cooper, on South Main Street in Hands of Contractor.

Mr. R. E. Cooper has let the contract for building his new residence, on South Main street, adjoining the home of H. D. Wallace. The plans and specifications were considered by several contracting firms, but the Forbes Mfg. Co. were the successful bidders. As stated in this paper a couple of weeks since, Mr. Cooper will have one of the most complete and up to date homes in the city, and that is saying much. The contract calls for quick completion, and the contractors are able to comply with it.

ODD FELLOWS

Will Give Big Carnival, Beginning Monday April 21.

The question of the time of holding a carnival was definitely fixed by the Odd Fellows at their meeting last Tuesday night. The date agreed upon is April 21 to 26 inclusive. It will be held in Mercer Park. The Moss Greater Shows will furnish the attractions. Although this company was here last year under the auspices of the Third Regiment Band the attractions this year will be on a much larger scale and will have many new features. The performances last year were well patronized and the return of the Moss Greater Shows will be worthy of large attendance every day. The Odd Fellows never do anything by halves and their support and financial interest in the carnival spell success at the very start.

MEETING OF
THE GRANGECrowd Was Enthusiastic and Many Subjects Discussed.

APRIL SPECIAL, 100 HEAD.

Big Annual Sale and Fish Fry Has Been Planned For May 23.

The farmers of the Church Hill vicinity had a rousing meeting in their hall last Friday. Several important subjects were freely discussed.

During the meeting it was made known by several of the members that they had a lot of cattle that were in fine condition for the market and they did not want to feed them until the regular annual sale day. It was finally decided to sell about 100 head on Friday, April 11th.

The members of the Grange want it understood that this sale will in no way interfere with their annual sale in May. At the regular sale they will be prepared as usual to furnish dinner to those who attend. Anybody who has attended these sales knows what that means. This year the plan is to have a regular fish fry with the usual accompaniments.

Church Hill Grange has never shown the least symptoms of dying, as have most, if not all, of the organizations in Kentucky, if not in the South. On the contrary, the grange is very much alive. Though Dr. Clardy, one of the leading spirits of the organization will, probably, never be able to attend another meeting; though J. B. Walker, who was one of the organization's most active and useful members, has been called into the great beyond. Church Hill Grange still has on its roll many of the county's most useful citizens, who will not let the organization fail or cease to exist. These men know what their Grange has done for them, and they are willing to trust in its benefits for the future.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

Musical and Readings at the Avalon Tuesday Night.

An appreciative audience greeted the four ladies who filled the program at the Avalon last Tuesday night. Whilst the attendance might have been larger yet the evening was a most delightful one. Every musical number being all that the most critical could enjoy with a zest. All enjoyed it and encore after encore followed.

The program was opened with a violin solo by Mrs. A. B. Anderson and never before had she used her violin with more effect. Throughout the program she seemed at her very best.

Mrs. Clark, one of Nashville's most gifted vocalists, was in splendid voice and in every number she soared from the lowest notes to the highest with the ease and sweetness of the songbird of spring. The range and carrying power of her highly cultivated voice is wonderful.

Miss Camp, the pianist, who is numbered among Nashville's magnificent performers, did her work like the true artist she is. Owing to a slight indisposition the audience was deprived of hearing her instrumental solo, The "Gnome Dance," by Liszt.

Miss Parrent's reading was a great feature of the program. She never looked more bewitching or read better than on this occasion. "The Message" was delivered so feelingly that it is hard to say whether her peculiar gift belongs to the realm of pathos or better is adapted to the temperament of those who take life in a happy-go-lucky way.

Dread of an Operation.
N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva Bashore, of this place, says: "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I weighed only ninety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and, instead, began to take Cardui.
In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition.
It is a woman's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggists. He will tell you

Specialists Recommend Yawning.
In the opinion of learned specialists no one can be healthy unless he or she does a certain amount of yawning.
When you yawn you expel from the lungs a lot of superfluous air; the breathing muscles of both the chest and the throat are strengthened by yawning.

from Mrs. James Hammer, of this

I would not be alive today, if it were not for Cardui. I had been a sufferer from womanly troubles all my life, until I found that great remedy. I feel that I can't praise it too highly." Are you a woman, suffering from some of the troubles, to which a woman is peculiarly liable? If so, why not try Cardui, the woman's tonic? You can rely on Cardui. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, and acts gently but surely, without bad after-effects. 'Twill help you. Ask your druggist.

MORE BOYS THAN GIRLS.
Race statistics of the last census were discussed by E. Dana Durand, director of the census, in an address delivered before a meeting of the Anthropological society the other day at the New National museum.
"During the decade from 1900 to 1910 the white population of the United States increased 22 per cent., while the colored increased only 11 per cent., and most of this difference was due to the immigration of the former in the absence of which the whites would have increased only about 14 per cent.," Mr. Durand said.
"The Indian," continued the speaker, "has increased about 12 per cent., the Chinese have decreased in numbers, and the Japanese have nearly trebled."

"In practically every census taken the whites have shown a more rapid increase than the colored," said Mr.
Durand. "There has been no great migration of the negroes from the south, and nine-tenths of their total number are found in that section. The natural rate of increase—that is, the excess of births over deaths among the white population of the south—is much higher than that of the colored, and of the whites in the north."
"Among all classes of the population the births of boys have exceeded that of the girls, but equality appears to be brought about by a higher death rate among the males."

"O. U. Kid?"
Representative Oscar Underwood, who has just turned fifty years and looks ten years younger, entered the grandfather class the other day. Mr.
Underwood's son, who lives in Birmingham, Ala., telegraphed the house leader that he is the father of a bouncing girl.
Mr. Underwood was advised also that one of his admirers whose last name is Kidd had named his latest arrival Oscar Underwood Kidd.
"I wonder if they'll call him 'O. U.
Kid?'" Mr. Underwood remarked to his secretary.

Spur of the Pack.
"The influence and spur of the pack is very manifest," says Allan Hobson, professor of homiletics in the University of Chicago, "and often gets the boy into trouble. But, like every other power, if it can be given into the hands of a competent leader, it may be made a power for good in moral development and in elvish service."

Pains in the Stomach.
If you continually complain of pains in the stomach, your liver or kidney medicine made. H. T. Alston, of Raleigh, N. C., who suffered with pain in the stomach and back, writes:

"My kidneys were deranged and my liver did not work right. I suffered much, but Electric Bitters was recommended and I improved from the first dose. I now feel like a new

Elaborate Preparations to Welcome the Guest, Though It is but for a Brief Period.

The gardener comes in to lay hearth fires and carry tables. We get out china and silver. We make salad and rolls, fruit-cup and cake.
We guide the cook's faltering steps over the critical moments of soup and chicken. We do the oysters in our own particular way, which we fancy inimitable. We arrange bushels of flowers in bowls, vases and baskets, and set them on mantels, tables, bookcases, everywhere that a flower can find a footing. The chauffeur comes in proudly with the flower holder from the limousine, and we fill it in honor of the distinguished guest.

Then we go outside to see that the approach to the house is satisfactory.
The bland old gardener points to the ivy-covered wall, and says with innocent joy, "— it, ain't that ivory the prettiest thing you ever saw in your life?" And we can't deny that the lawn looks well, with ivy and cosmos and innumerable chrysanthemums.

The cook and chambermaid will have to help wait on the table. The chambermaid, who is what the butler contemptuously calls "an educated nigger," and so knows nothing useful, announces that she has no white uniform. All she has is a cold in her head. We give her a blouse and skirt, wondering why Providence doesn't eliminate the unfit.—Atlan-

A MODERN SOLOMON.

All the solomons are not dead.
He was a magistrate who was used to dealing with negro boys.
Two boys were brought up for stealing.
Evidently one was guilty, but it was hard to tell which one.
The magistrate placed them in separate cells, gave each one a leather string of equal length.
"Now, boys, the string in the hands of the thief will grow," he said.
In two hours the boys were brought out.
One showed his string. It had not been touched.
The other had cut two inches off his string.
The judge said: "I got you."
And he had.—Baltimore News.

and supports the others."

NONE THERE.

"I thought I would come out today and take the air."
"Then why did you get in this

African Dwarf Elephants.
An English official in Uganda claims to have seen a herd of dwarf elephants, the existence of which has often been affirmed by natives. When recently seen the company consisted of from 30 to 40 individual elephants wandering in solitary fashion over a plain. The observer was most astonished at the weak defenses offered by their bodies. None of them had a tusk of more than ten kilograms in weight. A dead member of the flock was afterward found, the tusk of which weighed but eight kilograms.

Child-Training.
It is not fair to a small child for the parents or nurse to be careless about the little things that develop thoughtfulness, self-reliance and self-control in a child. Self-control is a character-istic absolutely essential to manhood or womanhood, and it is not learned in a day. It is the result of patient teaching and training through all the long years of babyhood and childhood.

Expectant.
A man slightly under the influence of liquor strolled into the art gallery, wandered about aimlessly for a while and stationed himself in front of a painting of several mermaids half submerged in water. He regarded this picture intently for perhaps a half hour. Then he walked over to an attendant and said: "Shay, ole fellow, what time does tide go out, any-way?"

WHEN HE RETURNED

Human Interest Story of Broken Financier's Home-Coming.

By JOHN LINFOOT.

Bremerton, huddled up in his seat, looked out of the window of the Westbound Limited. Neat farm houses, well tilled fields, flew past, with sleek cattle that looked up, munching contentedly, out of the lush grasses. It was the prairie country of Iowa, the region of black earth and farmlands, the nation's dairy and the center of her agricultural wealth.Boys with pitchforks, farm-hands seated above their harrows, guiding the draught horses, glanced carelessly at the speeding train and turned to their work once more. They were contented with their lot. Such might have been Bremerton's. And he, who, until two months before, had been a man feared and respected in the greatest part of America, a power in Wall street, against whom a host had banded themselves and barely prevented—found himself almost envying these countrymen."It looks like my home country," he reflected, as he caught sight of a distant range of low hills, blue in the haze of the afternoon. "And to think that I might have been living here, perhaps with my few acres, happy, never knowing or caring of anything that lay behind these hills!"The train slowed, drew into the station, waited a few moments, and then puffed out again. A man came into the carriage and stopped at Bremerton's side. The financier looked up with a start and unconcealed impatience."Excuse me, sir, but are you John Bremerton?" asked the other."Well?" Bremerton demanded curt-ly."I was sure that I was on your track. I knew I had recognized you.
I want the inside story of the failure of the Cornucopia bank. I am a representative of the Iowa Free-Seller.""Good Lord, man, that story has been printed in every newspaper between here and Kingdom Come," said Bremerton angrily. "Don't you read the metropolitan press out here?""O yes, indeed," said the reporter, smiling, "but you know, Mr. Bremerton, that the story has never come from your own lips. You have succeeded in secluding yourself from all the newspaper men. Now it would be a great feather in my cap if you would give me an exclusive interview."Bremerton softened a little. With the loss of his fortune, the wreck of all his hopes, with nothing at all saved out of the ruin, why should he not at least be instrumental in bringing a fragment of reputation to this young man at his side, whose per-fumeless good humor had already won his sympathy."You see, sir," the reporter continued, "of course we have all the details of the failure. We know that you were made the victim of an unscrupulous gang of financiers who sawed your properties. Nobody has ever breathed a word against your reputation. When the crash came you went back, faced the music, and came out with flying colors. But what are you going to do now? You are an own man by birth, are you not? And you never married, Mr. Bremerton?
Have you come back to settle in your state and marry your first sweetheart? I want a real human story.""A real human story!" repeated Bremerton mechanically, and smiled a little bitterly at the irony of events which had left his life, except for his widened experience, just where it had been when he had left Framington, a penniless country boy, fifteen years before. And his first sweetheart—Lizzie Gray! She was only fifteen then and he twenty-one, but he was going to become rich and famous in the metropolis—perhaps he would even make twenty dollars a week—and then, when that miracle occurred, he was going to send her the fare to come to him, and they would live happily all their lives. He had written—every day for a month, then every other day, then twice a week, once a week, once a month; after a year his letters ceased. After two years he had stopped thinking of her. He had heard, not long afterward, that she was married."Framington! Change here for Des Moines!" shouted the conductor, and Bremerton started up hastily and seized his suit case. He had taken passage to Des Moines, although he had been indifferent where he went.
Now that he reflected, he had selected that place, subconsciously, as it were, because the train passed through Framington. He had wanted to see the old town again.Standing upon the platform he found the reporter at his elbow. He had entirely forgotten him."I'm afraid there's a wait of two hours for the Des Moines train," he said. "We just missed the connection. Now, Mr. Bremerton, won't you please help me with that story? It will mean a great deal to me, sir."Bremerton was a man of quick decisions. He pulled out his watch."Three o'clock," he said, glancing at the dial. He turned to the other.
"My son," he said, "I'm going to take an hour's stroll through the old place.
Perhaps it will get me into a sentimental mood, or a reminiscence one.
If it does—well, I'll be back at four and I'll give you that story."He strolled out of the station. Except that a few new buildings had sprung up it was astonishing how little the town had changed during thefifteen years of his absence. Here was the old, irregular street, with its stores—he even remembered the names of them. There was Jim Hawley, the carpenter, still bending over his bench, industrious as ever; there the same old orchard in which he had gathered stolen apples when he was a boy. Then he was passing into the open country, and always his feet led him toward his father's home. He had refused to rent the old place after the old people had died, from some sentimental motives which he was ashamed to confess to himself.
How empty and forlorn it looked, with its boarded windows, and the garden, once trim, but now overgrown with weeds. And at the end of the lane was the Grays' cottage. That was not forlorn, but stood, trim and immaculate as ever, in its neat little garden.A woman was walking up the lane.
She had turned in from below, just where the Gray cottage abutted on the pike. She would see him when she came out of the bend a few feet from the stile. Bremerton remembered how his heart had hammered that morning he had first kissed her.
It was here, and Lizzie had walked just as she walked now, unconscious that he waited there. He had wanted to run away, as he wanted to run now. And she had looked up suddenly and seen him, just as she looked up now.And both had trembled, just as both were trembling now.And he had kissed her, just as he kissed her now.For the rush of the years was swept away, and they were boy and girl again beside the rustic stile. And it was only afterward, when they started guiltily away, that they remembered.Bremerton remembered that he was a mature man, verging upon middle life, who had lost all the happy aspirations and ideals of youth. And she . . . She had hardly changed except that her figure had grown mature and her face more thoughtful, graver."You are—not married then?" he stammered.She looked at him coldly, the flush of shame slowly fading out of her cheeks."How can you ask me that, John?"
she said.

"But I heard—I heard—"

"That's why you ceased to write?"
He had never been able to deceive Lizzie. Now the old impulse toward confession burned in him."No," he answered, "I ceased to write before I was told. But still, I am sure that if I had not heard so I should some day have come back."

"To redeem your pledge, John?"

Well, I release you from it. So let your conscience rest. My school occupies all my life and is my whole interest. While you—you are, or were, a very busy man and a very famous one."

"Then you have heard?" he asked.

"Of course I've heard of you, John Bremerton," she answered. "I—we have all followed your career with the greatest interest," she continued, coloring faintly. "You know we are all proud of you in Framington."

"Were proud," he corrected.

"Are proud, John," she replied, looking steadily into his eyes. "Because you fell fighting like a man, and never did a single dishonorable thing. And when they got you down it was they who were disgraced, not you. I am glad you came back for this little while, John, so that I could tell you this—that we all believe in you.""O, if only I had never gone!" he cried. "If I could have life over again I would stay here and live out my life with you. I've been a fool, Lizzie, and in searching for the pot of gold under the rainbow I found the gold—but I guess I missed the rainbow. But now the gold is gone and the rainbow is still shining. Lizzie, I've come back to stay—with you.""With me?" she repeated. "With me, John?""I want you," he cried. "I have never known what happiness meant since I went away. And even though I ceased to write and—well, forgot you—I always had a vision of time when I should come back to you.
But you see I thought I had lost the right to come. Lizzie, dear, I have found you again. I want to keep you.
Will you be my wife?""You—you mean that, John?" she stammered. "But—Oh, no, John, you are just chivvinous. I am not for you now; your place is in the city, where you will again make your mark —while I—"He drew her into his arms, and she lay there at last, happily. He bent his face to hers."Tell me you love me," he whispered."I have always loved you, John," she answered back. "And somehow I always knew that you would come.
Oh!"She disengaged herself hastily, looking up the lane in terror, and following her glance, Bremerton perceived the reporter approaching toward them. He was walking blithely and whistling. He had evidently not seen them, but now, coming upon them suddenly, he stopped short and began apologizing nervously."I was just taking a walk—" he began. "I thought I need not sit in that station till four. I didn't know—""That's all right, son," answered Bremerton. "Never mind that appointment, but sit down on that stile.
I'm going to give you a real human story."

The Love Letters of a Confederate General

WE begin in the November issue a series of real love-letters written over fifty years ago by one of our national heroes to his sweetheart during the period of 1865. This great general will go down to history as having accomplished one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the world. He was as great a lover as he was a general, therefore these letters combine authentic history and exquisite romance. They found a human note that no other work of literature has done in a decade; it is war, it is romance, it is history, it is literature. You simply can't afford to miss this wonderful series—an inside story of the Civil War now published for the first time and containing all the freshness of a contemporary happening. These letters will grip you hard, and hold your interest from first to last. Fill out the coupon and send it now before you forget it.

$100 Reward, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one remedy for the disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. The baby photographs that accompany this article are about as attractive as one could imagine. A national campaign for "Better Babies" is now well under way. Fully one hundred cities all over the United States, both large and small, are planning baby shows of the new sort for this year—that is, baby shows at which standard of supremacy is not to be beauty, as in the old-time baby shows, but health and physical excellence.

Kind Friends.

I wish to thank you, each and every one, who so kindly helped me in the Kentuckian contest. I want you all to know that I appreciate it just as much as if I had won a prize. I still always remember the kindness, as I think good friends are worth more than all the pianos and rings anyway. Again thanking you, I am sincerely,

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

HE WAS JUSTLY SUSPICIOUS

Smallish Man, With Sandy Whiskers, Was Not to Be Imposed on by Oily-Tongued Stranger.

A big mass meeting was being held in Elmville.

The well-groomed and sleek-looking individual who was trying to separate the town from its money arose to make a few remarks.

"Fellow citizens," he opened up, "apropos—"

"Just a minute, mister," said a smallish, sandy-whiskered man.

A look of annoyance crossed the speaker's face.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"I have here a pocket edition of Webster's Dictionary, and I want to look up that word 'apropos.' I don't intend to sit here and let some oily-tongued stranger slip one over on us," replied the sandy-whiskered man.

"You are a little suspicious, I see," said the speaker. "Now, that word to which you refer means—"

"Never mind what it means," enjoined the little man. "I'm looking it up. I let a smooth talker sell me a unicycle one time. He said it was the last word in conveyance, and when I paid the freight on it from Chicago, I found I had purchased a wheelbarrow."—Judge.

The Count at Home.

"Yes," remarked the returned tourist with a reminiscent smile, "I was continually bumping into old friends and acquaintances while abroad. Went into a fashionable barber shop in the Rue de Saint Gerard, in Paris, and whom do you suppose I met there?"

"Oh, I'm no good at guessing," said his friend. "Who was it?"

"The count of Pompadour, who cut such a swell at Newport a year or so ago."

"Let's see—you and the count didn't mix very well at Newport. Did he condescend to speak?"

"He certainly did. The moment I entered the tenebrous parlors, he smiled and said, 'Monsieur is next!'"

—Judge.

His Bank a Barrel.

"My friend," said the student of economics, stopping an honest working man on the street, "how do you spend your salary?"

"Well," said the laborer, who was a genial chap. "I pay expenses with part of it and I will save the rest."

"What are your wages?"

"I get $2 a day."

"And how do you dispose of your earnings? Do you put them in the savings bank?"

"No, sir. I pay the rent and the grocer and the butcher. Then what is left I pack in barrels. I'm afraid of banks—they fail sometimes."

The investigator put it down in his notebook.

Awful Shock.

It was three o'clock in the morning and the whole world was hushed in sleep. Suddenly there was a piercing yell. It was the house of the milkman. What could it mean?

The milkman's wife was roused from her sleep by another gurgling shriek. Shaking her husband by the shoulders, she awakened him.

"What on earth is the matter with you?" she demanded.

"Oh," he could only gasp as he wiped the beads of perspiration from his brow. "I've had a most horrible dream!"

"What was it?" demanded his wife anxiously.

"I dreamed the pump had been stolen!" answered the milkman.

HATES WATER.

"Where are you going with Fido?" "I'm going to take him to the dry cleaners; he hates to be washed so bad."

His Idea of Looking Wise.

"What was the matter with you while the professor was talking to you?"

"Why, nothing. He was talking about the system he has devised for interplanetary communication, and as I know nothing about interplanetary matters I merely kept quiet and looked wise."

"Looked wise?"

"That was all."

"Huh! I thought from your expression you had a stomach ache."

Decorations.

"Why do you think so much of being decorated? It doesn't give you ability."

"No, but it makes people think I have some."—Pete Mele.

TAKE PLACE OF MUSHROOMS

When Succulent Relish Is Unobtainable, Fried Radishes, Properly Prepared, Are a Good Substitute.

Mushrooms are fast becoming a necessity in the household of epicures, but there always comes a time when fresh ones are not obtainable and when a slice of a little extra elegance is needed for the larder, or to add a flavor to a grilled steak or a succulent chop, a good substitute for the champignon is found in fried radishes, peeled, and browned in plenty of butter. When brown and tender, arrange around the meat and send into the table, and wait for the exclamations of surprise as the similarity of flavor is noted. Oftentimes if the guests are not apprised, the substitution will pass unnoticed.

Compotes of winter fruits properly prepared help over that interval after the departure of the grape and other fresh fruits, when the palate craves the pleasant tart of nature's tonic to the system. The French housewife makes an intricate study of the preparation of her preserves and marmalades, and her attractive dishes of jams made from peaches, rhubarb and pineapple, flavored oranges and apples, prunes and gooseberries are a revelation to the American housekeeper who has, perhaps, taken less time to devote to the study of her table at this season.

Many Americans who prepare and stew their fruit daintily enough fall completely in one of the most important points of serving through which an otherwise alluring dish is often spoiled. Compotes should be served either hot or thoroughly chilled, and not as occasionally with us, lukewarm. Serve even the matutinal dish of stewed prunes from the lee chest with one or two green grape leaves under their glass dish, and see how much the flavor of this plebeian dish is improved.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Blankets, after being washed and dried thoroughly, should be well beaten with a carpet beater.

Wood alcohol will take varnish stains from wash goods. Soak them a few minutes in the alcohol.

Kerosene is not so explosive as it is inflammable, but it should never be brought in contact with fire.

If you have a jabot which is troublesome to iron, baste the points before it is washed, then iron and remove the threads. Use fine thread.

Towels should not be put in the guest room when they are brand new. Use them until they have been laundered—several times and lose their stiffness.

To wind a curtain, remove it from the brackets, wind it up by hand and then put it into the brackets and pull it out full length. Repeat if necessary.

If you rinse a plate with cold water before breaking the eggs on it, add to them a pinch of salt and then stand where there is a current of air, and you will have no difficulty in beating them to a froth.

Danger in a Dark Kitchen.

No man has a right to expect a woman to keep a sweet heart and a cheerful mind and live in a house bare of comfort and beauty and work in a dark kitchen. Too many farmers when building a house never consult their wives, take no thought of their comfort or convenience, and leave the kitchen the last thing to be considered if it is considered at all. And if asked to spend money on decorating the home would actually feel abused! A woman's life in the country is often necessarily lonely and she ought to have the very sunniest, most pleasant rooms in the house for her sitting-room and kitchen. Most farm wives spend two-thirds of their waking hours in the kitchen, and no money spent in making this place one of convenience and comfort can ever be wasted.

Hot Cross Buns.

Sift together one quart flour, half teaspoon salt, one cup sugar, three scant teaspoons baking powder. Rub in half cup butter, add half pound cleaned raisins or currants, half teaspoon nutmeg, half teaspoon allspice, quarter pound cut citron. Beat two eggs and add half cup milk and stir into dry mixture, adding enough milk to mix to a firm dough, mold into round buns, lay two inches apart on greased pans, brush with milk, cut cross on each, sprinkle with granulated sugar and bake in hot oven.

New Asparagus Dish.

A delicious variation for asparagus is to bake it in a cream sauce. Cook in salted water until tender, drain, put in a butter baking dish and pour enough cream sauce over to cover. Sprinkle with grated Swiss or Parmesan cheese and a few bits of butter, and brown in the oven.

Makes Wool Light.

After your blankets have been washed and dried thoroughly beat them vigorously with a carpet beater. This makes the wool light and soft and gives the blankets a new, fresh appearance.

Minute Biscuit.

One pint of sour buttermilk, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons melted butter, flour to make a soft dough just stiff enough to handle. Mix, roll and cut out rapidly with a little handling as may be. Bake in a quick oven.

Tragedy of the Wiping Out of the Incas as a Nation is One of the Greatest in History.

What became of the people who built the Cuzco ruins? Were they the ancestors of those stolid and downtrodden Indians whom one sees today peddling their rude wares in the market place of Cuzco? Mr.
Bryce discusses the question in his "South American." He says: "The sudden fall of a whole race is an event so rare in history that one seeks for explanations. It may be that not only the royal Inca family, but nearly the whole ruling class was destroyed in war, leaving only the peasants, who had already been serfs under their native sovereigns.
But one is disposed to believe that the tremendous catastrophe which befell them in the destruction at once of their dynasty, their empire and their religion by fierce conquerors, incomparably superior in energy and knowledge, completely broke not only the spirit of the nation, but the self-respect of the individuals who composed it.

"They were already a docile and submissive people, and now under a new tyranny, far harsher than that of rulers of their own blood, they sank into hopeless apathy and ceased even to remember what their forefathers had been. The intensity of their devotion to their sovereign and their deity made them helpless when both were overthrown, leaving them nothing to turn to, nothing to strive for.

"The conquistadores were wise in their hateful way when they put forth the resources of cruelty to outrage the feelings of the people and stamp terror in their hearts."

MAKING SMALL CHANGE.

They had an ingenious plan for meeting a shortage of small change in the old days before copper coins existed. Until the reign of Edward I, the silver penny was the smallest coin minted in England, to the great inconvenience of the small purchaser of the period. But the difficulty was to some extent got over by the issue of pennies indented with a deep cross. The coin could then be broken into halfpennies and farthings.
Our first real copper coinage only dates from 1672, and until the time of Edward VI. farthings of silver were coined, growing smaller and smaller as the value of silver increased.—London Chronicle.

ITS RIGIDITY.

"Is the law against expectoration so rigidly enforced in this public place?"

"So rigidly that they wouldn't even let me bring my Spitz dog in with me."

STARTING IT.

"What do you honestly think of me?"

"About the same as you think of
me."

"Gee! As bad as that?"

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES.

Ted—Do you believe that woman should hold the reins?
Ned—It is all right when you have the girl out in a sleigh.—Judge.

SOMETHING SIMILAR.

"The poor man doesn't have tire troubles."

"That's so, but there is nearly always a hole in his shoe."

JUMPING TO A CONCLUSION.

"Oh, I've got the dandiest big muff now I saw you last!"

"O-o-oh! What's his name?"

Are You a Woman?

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. W. H. Ison, at 1419 East Madison street, writes:
"For several years, I suffered, off and on, from female troubles, until finally I was taken down and could do nothing. The pains I experienced, I shall never forget. I lost weight till I was only skin and bones.
I believe I would have been in my grave, if I had not tried Cardui. I

NOT HIS TIME TO PASS ON

Return to Life of Supposed Dead Man Gave a Shock to Mourners at His Bedside.

The residents of Kells, county Meath, Ireland, are much excited over the coming to life of a supposed dead man. Philip Fitzpatrick, a cattle drover, dropped, apparently dead, in a field, and the body was removed to the local hospital. There arrangements were made for the funeral, and the body was afterward taken to the workhouse mortuary.
Meantime a telegram had been sent to the dead man's brother, asking him to come to Kells. The message was considerably worded, "Brother dying," but while on his journey he overheard two travelers talking talking about the sudden death in Kells. He asked the name of the dead man, and receiving confirmation of his suspicion, he hurried to Kells. On his arrival, however, he was agreeably surprised to learn that so far from being dead his brother was very much alive. While a cord which Fitzpatrick wore round his neck was being cut preparatory to his being "laid out" the man woke. He had been some three hours "dead" at the time, and his unexpected return to life gave those by the bedside a more or less severe shock.

HIS PLAN COMPLETE SUCCESS

Old Gentleman's Hint Successful In Expediting the Going of Wooer Who Outstayed Welcome.

Men relate a merry tale of a certain young man and how he became smitten with the charms of a delightful person who lives in one of our suburbs.

The young man called on the lady often, and he seemed always loath to tear himself away from her charming presence at what her father considered the proper hour. This worried the old man. And one evening he strolled into the drawing room.
After chatting pleasantly for a minute, he said:

"How do you like our little suburb?"

"I find it delightful, sir," answered the swain.

"Yes, it is nice. And a strictly law-abiding place. For instance, the saloons close up tight at the legal hours—back door and all. A man can't get a drink a minute after twelve o'clock."

The young man looked at his watch.

"Goodness!" he exclaimed, "I had no idea I was staying so long. I must ask your pardon. Good night."
And he hurried thence.

The old man smiled.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GETTING IN RIGHT.

"I understand you have just bought an automobile?"

"Yes. I saw seven of them chasing one pedestrian the other day, and I decided that I was on the wrong end of the sport."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WRITTEN DURING THE DAY.

"A lady poet has written a beautiful apostrophe to sleep."

"Well?"

"The performance is truly remarkable, because I happen to know that the lady poet's husband snores dreadfully."

INDICATION.

"I'd like to get a job here, ma'am.
I can bring some strong testimonials."

"I have no doubt of that, my good man. Your breath is one."

SUITED HIM.

"You grumble every time I spend anything. I am just going to go home and spend a whole month!"

"Well, I won't grumble at that."

AMBIGUOUS.

"We had some fine old punch at our house the other night."

"I know you did. My husband came home full of it."

NATURALLY.

"Tramps lead a vegetable sort of life, don't they?"

"Of course they do. Aren't they beats?"

FORTY-TWOED.

Belle—She confessed to forty-two.

Maudie—That certainly requires

KIT CARSON'S

Buffalo Ranch Wild West Shows to Exhibit in Hopkinsville April 15.

Two Hours Will Be Required to Present the Program at Each Performance.

On April 15 Kit Carson's Buffalo Ranch Wild West Shows will exhibit at Hopkinsville afternoon and night. This is the largest amusement enterprise of its character in the world. Solid trains of their own, double length cars are required for the transportation of this colossal attraction. Never before have so many features been combined under one management. The Aeroplane for instance is but one of the strange sights to be seen with this exhibition. Not a model but a Curtis Farnum Aeroplane furnished by the Chicago Aeroplane Manufacturing Co., and guaranteed to give flights daily. It will circle the city and alight at show grounds for the public's inspection.

A menagerie of trained wild animals is also an innovation with a wild west show. Elephants, Camels, Buffalo and on down to the smaller species of bipeds and quadrupeds. A two mile street pageant glittering with gold and silver, with the eye and the exquisite music of the three big bands will please the lovers of harmony.

Coming as we do from the largest ranch in the world, we carry nothing but the very best of riders and ropers and guarantee to ride any horse or mule free of charge if brought to the show grounds and offer a reward if we fail. The Cossacks with the show were selected from the Czar's cavalry in Russia and are without doubt the finest horseman in the world. Then there are the

Is Going At a Rapid Gait These Days.

It may be that Geoffrey Morgan, who is teaching farmers how to farm, can keep up and going at the rate he is now hitting the county pikes, but it may also be questionable. As to what he is doing, the following engagements for this week will give a pretty good idea. He is certainly "going some."

Monday, March 31, Oscar Smiley's farm Tuesday a. m., Ben. F. Wood's farm. Tuesday p. m., Hopkinsville High School. Wednesday a. m., T. B. Adkins' and H. I. Minty's farms on the Clarksville road. Wednesday p. m., Hopkinsville High School with Prof. Hendricks of Lexington. Thursday, O. H. Robinson's farm. Friday, Johnson Mill Road. Saturday, office day.

Rough Riders from the plains of South America, Vaqueros from Old Mexico, champion lady riders of the world, imported European Novelty acts of every description, bands of Sioux, Cheyenne and Comanche Indians with their picturesque squaws and papposes. A dozen comical clowns in fun and foolishness. In fact two hours will be required to present the program and you will leave the show grounds a true friend and earnest advocate of Kit Carson's Buffalo Ranch Wild West. But don't forget the date. Two performances only on April 15, afternoon and night.—Advertisement.

Will Probated.

The will of Mrs. Mary L. Cannon, who died not long since, was probated this week. The deceased left to her two daughters, Theresa and Kate, the farm in Trigg county, containing 120 acres. In the event only one of them should marry, the one remaining single shall have full possession. Should both of them marry the farm is to be sold for division. Her son, Fearn Cannon, is not to share in the estate, he having already received his part.

Pasture.

The Holland pasture will be let by Pennyroyal Fair Co. and notice will be given through these columns when the grass has attained sufficient growth.

MARK'S TREASURES ALL SAFE

Humorist, However, Did Not Appreciate Manner in Which His Friend Had Returned Them.

Just before Christmas a friend named Scott said to Mark Twain one day:

"Mr. Clemens, you have an extra overcoat hanging in the coat room. I've got to attend my uncle's funeral and it's raining hard. I'd like to wear it."

The coat was an old one, in the pockets of which Clemens kept a melancholy assortment of pipes, soiled handkerchiefs, neckties, letters and what not.

"Scott," he said, "if you won't lose anything out of that coat you may wear it."

An hour or two later Clemens found a notice in his mail box that a package for him was in the office. He called for it and found a neat bundle which somehow had a Christmas look. He carried it up to the reading room with a showy air.

"Now, boys," he said, "you may make all the fun of Christmas you like, but it's pretty nice, after all, to be remembered."

They gathered around and he undid the package. It was filled with the pipes, soiled handkerchiefs and other articles from the old overcoat. Scott had taken special precautions against losing them.

Mark Twain regarded them in silence, then he drawled:

"Well—d—n Scott! I hope his uncle's funeral will be a failure."—The Bookman.

Papa—Tommy, here is a nickel and you must go right to bed.

Tommy (aged six)—Nix-nix. I want more pay and longer hours.

SIBERIAN BANISHMENT.

A bill being prepared by the Russian minister of justice, according to press dispatches, will abolish penal servitude in Siberia and will substitute the same punishment in the penitentiaries of European Russia without compulsory settlement of the convicts after serving their sentences, which is to be superseded by police supervision. Since the signing of the Japanese treaty the number of convicts in Siberia has been increasing, and there have been bitter protests from the respectable free population of that country. The dumping of convicts in Siberia is seriously hampering the development of that country, and the authorities realize that there must be an alteration of the system.—The Living Church.

"I could not pull myself together again."

ITS MEASURE.

"Is your friend in good standing at the bar?"

"His standing at the bar is good for a treat to the crowd."

ITS SORT.

Bob Taylor Lives,

In the two bright and beautiful books just issued, "Lectures and Best Literary Productions," and "Life and Career" of Senator Robert Love Taylor, handsomely illustrated, you cannot hear again his voice or see the humorous curl of his lips, that convulsed a continent with laughter, but, within the covers of these volumes, are the pictures woven of his wondrous words, and, laughing through their sunny pages, are all of the inimitable stories which he told to the multitudes. In "Life and Career," pens of genius have traced his romantic life from its morning in "Happy Valley," through his young and roseate dreams, through stress and storm, through cheering throngs, and on into the waiting shadows, loved and laurel crowned.

We expect to sell millions of these books. First edition going fast.
